

THE VALUE OF SETTING A GOOD EXAMPLE.

By McCutcheon, in Chicago Daily Tribune.

Mrs. Highflyer—"Dear me—Mrs. Pinkney—tell her I've gone out, Sophy."

Mrs. Highflyer (to friend)—"I'm having a perfectly dreadful time with my servants—they are so dishonest. I can't believe a word they say. Dear me, why can't we get good, honest servants?"

Moral: Like master, like man; like mistress, like maid.

MANY LOST BANK BOOKS.

Thousands of Them Go Astray During the Year in One Way and Another.

"That's the third woman who has been here to-day to notify us that she has lost her bank book," said the receiving teller of a savings bank a few days ago, says the New York Sun. "That's a bigger average than usual, but nobody except a banker has any idea how many bank books are reported lost in a year. I couldn't tell, myself, but it is away up in the thousands."

"Most of them aren't really lost, though, they're just mislaid, and a few days later the person who reported to us that a book was gone returns sort of ashamed and says he's sorry to have caused us all the trouble, but the book was found back of his desk."

"I'll bet that woman who just left will be here within three days to tell us something like that. Most of 'em do, and the women are the worst offenders."

Of course a depositor is safe, even though his bank book is found by a dishonest person. The paying teller wouldn't pay out money unless the ownership of the pass book was proved; but a lot of unlucky depositors are afraid of fraud, just the same.

Bankers know that most of the lost books will appear before long, so they don't issue new ones for six months. They are allowed to make that delay by law, and it saves them a lot of trouble, for two pass books on the same account are sure to give rise to complications.

During the six months of waiting for a lost book to reappear, the depositor is often put to some trouble. The account is supposed to be temporarily suspended; but savings banks make it a general rule to see that their patrons are not unduly inconvenienced, and money may be withdrawn if the need is known to be pressing.

"It sometimes happens, too," said the paying teller, "that a crafty wife is responsible for a lost book. A case that happened a few days ago illustrates this point."

"A husband had an account with us and told his wife that he thought he'd draw out his money and play stocks. He told her that everything was booming up and it was a shame not to take some of the street's money."

"But his wife couldn't see it. The husband's life insurance was due pretty soon, and she wasn't taking any chances about losing that policy through her husband's losses in stocks making it impossible for him to pay the premium."

"Well, when Mr. Man looked in his desk the next morning for his pass book, intending to come down here and draw out all his cash, the book couldn't be found. Mr. Man reported to us that his book was lost. We were sorry, but he didn't get his money out."

"Then came the slump when copper carried all the rest of the market down and wiped out many a margin. Mr. Man came around a day or so ago and told me that his wife admitted to him that she had hidden that bank book, and, say, he was the happiest man you ever saw. Said he was everlastingly grateful to his wife, who had more brains in her head in a minute than he had in a week, for preventing him from losing his bundle; and he told me that our rules were the finest ever."

"So, you see—though we didn't count on anything like that—there's some good that comes from red tape after all."

Eagerly Sought After.

In Denmark the postmen often have very long rounds in the country, and are obliged to walk or ride many miles a day in all kinds of weather; but undesirable as such positions would seem to be, they are eagerly sought after, and more surprising still, by men suffering from consumption. It has been proved that the work is healthy, despite the hardships and the exposure to inclement weather, for almost all the invalids who adopt the life become robust and hearty.

Friendly Suggestion.

Windig—I don't know what we are going to do with our youngest boy. Joblots—What's the trouble?"

"He's getting so we can't believe a word he says."

"Why don't you get him a job in the prediction department of the government weather bureau?"—Chicago Daily News.

A GOOD END POST.

Those of the Figure 4 Style Good When Constructed Properly—A Practical Experience.

In a recent Ohio Farmer, one of the readers advises others against the figure-4 style of end-post braces for fence. I have on my farm, says Chancy Avery, 14 end posts of this type, all giving as good service as I think it possible to get from any wood post; some of them have been set for six years, and the truss rods have needed no tightening, and I am confident that with the right principle of construction, carefully executed, this style of bracing will be found the best. Thorough work is essential to success with any style of bracing. Too short braces lift too much on the end post, and END POST BRACE.

I think this the main source of failure. In erecting the Fig. 4 type I set my posts as shown in the sketch. The post A is 14 to 18 inches in diameter and set 3 1/2 feet in the ground and has two pieces 2x12 plank three feet long, spiked to faces on the post, as shown at F. The large stone, D, is flat and about twice as large as a man can lift, and finely settled in its bed with its top about three or four inches above ground. On this stone rests a brace shoe of 3x4 inches wagon tire iron, bent as shown, with a hole in the straight end, through which the rod C is bent or hooked as shown. C is a three-fourths inch rod 12 feet long and has five inches of thread, a nut and very large (three or four-inch) washer on the other end which passes through a one inch hole in the post about six inches above the surface of the ground. If the post ever sags forward, it can be righted by removing dirt from the back of post as indicated by shaded line G, and then tightening the nut on the rod. It is a good plan to fill the thread on the rod thoroughly with axle grease, to prevent rust, before putting it in. If readers desire I will in future describe some other posts I have in use, which evidently will be all right at the dawn of the next century.

PRESERVING FENCE POSTS.

They May Be Made to Last Much Longer If They Are Dipped in Tar Before Being Set.

There are several methods whereby fence posts may be made to last much longer than if set untreated. An application of coal tar mixed with 1-10 oil of turpentine and applied hot is one of the best preservatives. To do this, have an ordinary large iron kettle, in which to heat and mix the tar, and a deep vat, which may be an old wash boiler or similar tin vessel, which must be at least three feet deep and ten inches in diameter. Have the tar quite hot when the posts are dipped. Allow them to remain a moment, then remove and pile with the ends free and allow to dry.

A mixture of three parts coal tar and one part clean, unsalted grease, to prevent the tar from drying until it has had time to fill the pores of the wood, is also a first-class preservative, says the Farm and Home. One barrel coal tar should cover 300 posts. This may be painted upon the posts, but better be applied in a bath as described above. In either case the posts should not be set deeper than the tar has been applied. An application to the top or exposed part of the post need not be so thorough. Good paint is more valuable for exposed portions.

Posts used in this way should be thoroughly dry and well seasoned before the tar is applied, otherwise when set they will rot quite as rapidly as if untreated. Heavy tar oils, such as carbolineum, are better than paints or coal tars, but are expensive for general use. Charring posts before setting is not a good practice, because when charred large cracks appear, which are openings for rot.

BITS FOR THINKING FARMERS.

Stop the leaks. Be a good neighbor. Good seed—good luck. Pile up and burn the rubbish. Does the house or barn need painting?

Are there any tools or implements uncared for? Running down a farm don't run up a bank account. How about the cellar? It needs some attention these days.

Devote your attention to that breed of stock you like best. The farmer who is smaller than his farm plays a losing game.

"It is never too late to mend"—a broken gate, door or leaky roof.—Midland Farmer.

Cows Creatures of Habit.

Cows are creatures of habit, and this applies as much to their food as to anything else. A change of feed frequently means a falling off in the amount of milk the animals produce, and this occurs, too, in relation to the most succulent of foods. No food is considered better for cows than June grass, yet a prominent dairyman informs the writer that when his cows are changed from silage to pasture they invariably fall off temporarily in their milk flow. He says that the same is true if he changes from old to fresh silage. This should be borne in mind, especially in changing from succulent to dry feeds.—Farmers' Review.

The Cement Floor.

The cement floor in the dairy barn has doubtless come to stay. The only objection against it is the fact that it is cold for the cows to lie on. This may be obviated by the use of bedding, and bedding is very abundant on most farms.

An Odd Happening.

Herr Paul Turon of Teschen, in Austria, sang a hymn at his own burial the other day. He had intoned the hymn into a phonograph shortly before his death and directed that it should be reproduced at his funeral service. This was carried out by his heirs, who, under the terms of Herr Turon's will, had to sacrifice $500 of his estate to a charity if they failed to comply with his wish.

Invited to Be Executed.

Dr. Abdul Hikmet, a Turkish resident in Paris, has been requested by the Turkish embassy to return within 20 days to Constantinople, where an order for his execution awaits him. The doctor recently published a violently worded pamphlet charging the sultan with responsibility for the massacre of non-Muslims in the Turkish empire. He has appealed to the French government for protection.

Baron Kaneko says: "Well-to-do Japanese do not live so very differently from Americans. For breakfast they have their coffee—from your latest possessions, the Philippines; condensed milk from Chicago, bread from flour milled in Minneapolis. They smoke a cigarette of Virginia leaf, and they read a morning paper printed on paper made in Wisconsin."

Smallest Inherited Legacy.

Next to the proverbial shilling, perhaps the smallest legacy has been inherited by a native of New Zealand. He had a son, who died in the Dutch Indies, and left him his effects, amounting to 12 1/2 pence. The money was payable at Middleburg, and the man had to wait ten Dutch leagues for it, losing also a day's work.

WENT TOO MUCH BY NAME

Lady Hotel Guest Receives Some Enlightenment from Colored Waiter.

A woman lives at one of the Kansas City hotels who has the reputation of being rather finicky and hard to please in the manner of food. A day or two ago at lunch, relates the Kansas City Journal, after looking over the dessert list, she decided on some ice cream pudding. The meal had been one with which she had considerable difficulty in finding fault, but when she had half finished the dessert she called the waiter over and said:

"George, what do you mean by calling this ice cream pudding? There isn't any ice cream about it, and you know it."

"Yes'm," said the waiter. "I know there isn't no ice cream in it. Dat's jest a name they give it. I do know why."

"Well," she continued, "I think that if they give a dish such a name they ought to make it conform to the name, and if you call this ice cream pudding, you ought to bring some ice cream with it."

"Yes'm," answered the waiter, "but you know we can't alius do it that way. You know we don't bring a cottage in with cottage pudding."

The waiter's reply brought a burst of laughter from the people who heard the conversation, and since then the woman's criticisms of the menu have been few and infrequent.

Especially for Women.

Champion, Mich., Jan. 9th.—(Special)—A case of especial interest to women is that of Mrs. A. Wellatt, wife of a well-known photographer here. It is best given in her own words.

"I could not sleep, my feet were cold and my limbs cramped," Mrs. Wellatt states. "I had an awful hard pain across my kidneys. I had to get up three or four times in the night. I was very nervous and fearfully despondent. I had been in this way for five years when I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and what they caused to come from my kidneys will hardly stand description."

"By the time I had finished one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was cured. Now I can sleep well, my limbs do not cramp, I do not get up in the night, and I feel better than I have in years. I owe my health to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Women's ills are caused by diseased kidneys, the theory Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure them.

"I never become angry because a man does not think quite as I do," remarked the professor, "for when I find a man who disagrees with me I realize that I am probably with difficulty that he thinks at all."—Judge.

Miss Whittaker, a prominent club woman of Savannah, Ga., tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and Uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had. Very truly yours, Miss EASY WHITTAKER, 604 39th St., W. Savannah, Ga."

No physician in the world has had such a training or such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills as Mrs. Pinkham.
